

Genelink

Flock No: WD031

Owners Denis & Bronwin Russell

Flock 31 originally named Parilla White Dorper Stud was established in 1998 with the importation of embryos from Dries Wiese. The flock was the major contributor to the foundation of the Saltbush flock when they were combined in 2000. The flock was re-established By Denis & Bronwin Russell in 2005 with the purchase from Saltbush of several original Parilla ewes and some Saltbush bred ewes mainly from Parilla lines. The name was then also changed to Genelink to reflect the experience this business has had in developing the breed. Denis & Bronwin will continue with their established breeding direction - Clean shedding, well muscled, free moving sheep suited to the Australian environment and able to perform well in the Stud and commercial market place. Breeders and commercial operators are always welcome to visit to gain information on breeding, marketing and commercial meat production or take advantage of our consulting service.
